	Commitment of MCA dept towards educating students with practical industry knowledge is unparalleled.It's need of the hour but very few are addressing it. The zeal & passion with which you and your team works towards educating students outside of curriculum is really commendable.It was hard to miss the detail & effort with which events were planned when I was speaker during GDG & txtWeb events conducted there. This directly reflects on students as well. Planet of Apps which was a Rajkot wide sms app building challenge conducted by txtWeb , saw one of the highest student participation from Gardi.I congratulate you on your success and wish you all the best for all future activities. As always let me know if I could be of any help to you in this noble initiative of yours. Parth Lalcheta

	This year when I visited B. H. Gardi College of Engineering and Technology for the first time, I was pleasantly surprised to see the educational complex having such a good and advance facilities. Huge conference rooms, library, classrooms, computer facilities. Even more facilities were being worked on. I had never seen such a university when I was young and not even in London where I lived for 22 years and also studied my B.Sc in Electrical and electronics Engineering. Immediately I had a question in my mind. All these facilities is good but is it being used effectively, are faculties teachers and professors professional and experienced ? Are students making good use of the facilities ? I had a long and interesting chat with Prof Vaibhav Gandhi, Associate Professor and Head, Department of MCA, and he assured me that their teaching staff was one of the best and it shows in the results achieved by students of the university. Education is a service to community and this seems to be the mantra at Gardi.
